2008 National Missing Children's Day Poster Contest

"My poster shows a tree on top of the world. There's a large house at the trunk, surrounded by other houses of the families with missing children. On the tree, roads and trails trace every branch and twig. There are children climbing and hiking all over the tree, trying to find the road home. I used this poster as a metaphor to help kids understand how important this contest is."
