The skeletonized remains of a small build, white male was located in the inner-city of St. Louis, MO in a burned out vacant business building. The victim's hair is described as being blonde/brown, short to medium length, and somewhat straight. He had crooked teeth on the right upper side and had four fillings. He was possibly left handed.

The victim was wearing a black rain coat, a pink shirt, blue jeans, white socks, and striped Fruit of the Loom boxers (size 30-32). He had a shoe insole of size 8 ½ to size 9. A white t-shirt with a Myrtle Beach logo was in his possession.

The cause of death was from multiple stab wounds. Dental records, DNA, and full body x-rays are available.
